"Idyllic...Like a Gauguin painting..." (Vogue)
"Unique...an ideal getaway" (Frommers Guide)
"The food is outstanding" (Vogue Entertaining)
"Samui's most elegant small hotel"
(London Sunday Times)

Koh Samui is the gateway to over 80 islands in the Gulf of Siam. Most are uninhabited and make up part of the Ang Thong National Marine Park.

All are within a 90 minute speedboat ride from Koh Samui. From mid-February to the end of October the water is warm and visibility averages 15 - 30 m. Dense schools of tropical fish glide through the shallow coral reefs (20 m or less). Giant groupers, curious batfish, pelagic fish, solitary copias and barracuda are all found here. Black coral abounds, as do yellow, pink and red seafans.

There is also an astonishing variety of hard corals. Huge, but harmless and friendly whalesharks are well-known visitors at the favourite deeper divesites (20 to 35 m).

On the boat rides to and from the islands keep a sharp eye out for playful dolphins and whales.

The Big Buddha

Sitting 15 metres tall, The big Buddha is arguably Samui's most popular attraction. The Buddha was built in 1972 by a local society that wished to give visitors a place to pay respect to The Lord Buddha.

You will find this monumental landmark on a small island just off Samui's Northern coast.

...than in Bangkok.
Initiatives in Bangkok are generally slightly cheaper than in Chiang Mai, though Chiang Mai Beach has hosted several top marked resorts.
A wide range of restaurants and night clubs for every taste.
And in Chiang Mai you find a real bar scene!
The local tourism industry is developing rapidly
It will surely attract a visit.
